INTRO

The productivity of an organization is directly connected to the effectiveness of organizational leadership.

What do you mean by organizational leadership?

It's the decision-makers of an organization. While the owners hold authority over the overall organization, the people involved in the decision-making process and execution are also responsible for leading the organization in the right direction.

Therefore the decision-makers of an organization must be well-equipped with essential competencies to assure the success of the organization.

This program is designed to help business leaders review, refresh and reorient their leadership roles based on KBC (Key Business Criteria).

TO WHOM

“ To help the leadership team to empower themselves, to lead the present and future business effectively and confidently.
